Testimonial

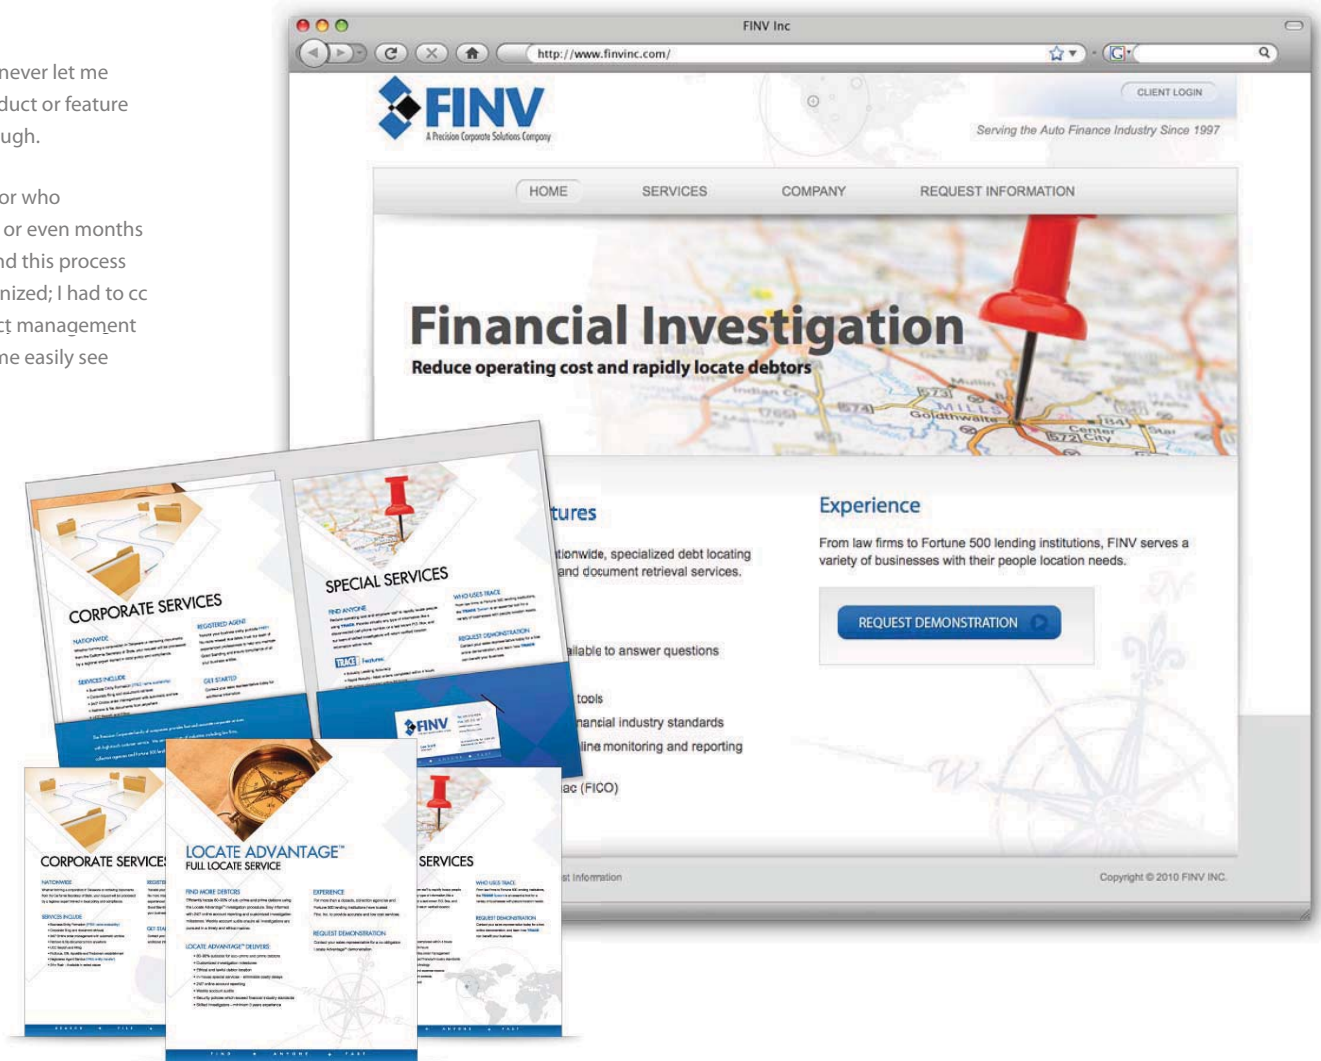

I have been with I-Tul for several years and they have never let me down. In crunch situations, when I needed a new product or feature added to my site immediately, they always come through.

Previously, I was with a smaller independent contractor who outsourced all of his work. Projects would take weeks or even months to complete. In my business, time is of the essence and this process quickly became unmanageable. It became so disorganized; I had to cc myself on emails to keep it straight. Now, I-Tul's project management system organizes real time correspondence and lets me easily see where they are on a project.

I-Tul's top notch team can help any size organization. Whether you need tech support, design or programming they have an onsite team member to help right away. Better yet, they are very pro-active on building value into my business software. On several occasions, I have asked Clint "why we don't do xyz", more often than not they have already added it into the design.

I-Tul can handle any development project you may have and the resources to handle any issue which may arise.
